

Dev Virdee worked in the UK Government Statistical Service for 33 years, leaving in 2010 after serving as a Deputy Director at the Office for National Statistics. He was responsible for various aspects of regional and local statistics, including Regional Accounts, Neighbourhood Statistics, Regional Economic Analysis, Urban & Rural definitions and analysis, and establishment of teams of Regional Statisticians in nine English regions. He was also the Chair of the OECD Working Party on Territorial Indicators from 2006 to 2010.

Since 2010, he has helped with projects related to regional statistics in Albania, Moldova, Mozambique and Tunisia, and other projects in several countries. He has also worked with the UK Statistics Authority and the Royal Statistical Society to establish arrangements for User Engagement in respect of official statistics. Within the RSS, he is a member of the International Development Working Group, the Statistics User Executive and the Diversity, Equality and Inclusion Working Group. A recent role has been as a member of the team carrying out peer reviews of five NSI's within the European Statistical System – Slovenia, France, Poland, Romania and Switzerland – assessing their compliance with the European Statistics Code of Practice.

Dev Virdee

Official Statistics Adviser